In cooperation with the renowned Steinbeis University in Berlin, Germany, a state-approved private University with accreditation for the conferral of doctorates, the ESCD offers an European-wide postgraduate and extra occupational “Master of Science” in dentistry, setting the standards in terms of quality and innovation.

It is a significant contribution to dental education and was developed for those dentists who are seeking a more rewarding continuous education.

The Master of Science stands for the highest national and international level. The Steinbeis University and the ESCD together provide access to expertise through the international exchange of technological and scientific knowledge. Please note that the official website of the Society is ONLY www.escdonline.eu. Every member wishing to link to the ESCD website must use the above mentioned website. Any other website is no longer valid.

As you are probably aware, this is because on February 22nd 2007 the ESCD became part of IFED, and took its current name and website.
